CDM KAMPUNGKU: JULY 2022
Get in Touch with God's Mercy

All his work, indeed his very being, is conformed to Jesus Christ crucified. Jesus then instructs his disciples about their message. He tells them: "first say, 'Peace to this household.'" The mission seeks to give peace to all who are willing to accept it. His peace is seen as the fruit of living according to the Father's will. As disciples and missionaries, we are all called to find peace in the will of the Father and to invite others to share in the gift. The same Father who creates the abundant harvest and sends labourers to gather them is the Source of our peace. Jesus says further that the sharing of the Gospel of peace is to be done with respect for the freedom of its hearers.

When the seventy-two return from their mission, they are rejoicing, amazed at their power to drive out demons in Jesus' name. Jesus, while acknowledging their joy and their power, gives them some wisdom to put everything into proper perspective. Those who spread the message of peace brought about by faithfulness to the Father, do indeed expel demons. But there is more: the Gospel transforms its hearers to become children of God: "rejoice because your names are written in Heaven." To have our names written in Heaven means that we belong to God, not to this world. That is the greatest joy we find ourselves, urging us to allow the reign of Christ in us and to control our life destiny.

How seriously do I take the priest when he says at the end of the Mass "Go in peace to love and serve the Lord"? As I work in the Lord's vineyard, what motivates me? How does my inner peace or conflict affect my sharing the Gospel with others?
