Parish Priest speaks...

Like the Israelites in the first reading, God has freed us from slavery to sin. He has borne us up on "eagles wings" and brought us to Himself. We have been blessed to see, over the past few weeks, how God has done this, as we celebrated God pouring out His Spirit upon us in the Feast of Pentecost, His invitation to share in His own communion of love on Trinity Sunday, His provision of the spiritual nourishment which transforms us into His own likeness in Corpus Christi, and the unfathomable depths of His mercy and love which are contained in His most Sacred Heart. He assures us that, if we "hearken to His voice and keep His covenant," we shall be His "special possession, dearer to Him than all other people." We shall be to Him "a kingdom of priests, a holy nation."

Indeed, we see the heart of Jesus displayed for us again in the gospel, in which He is "moved with pity" for the crowd, "because they were troubled and abandoned, like sheep without a shepherd." God is not distant, He is a Father, He knows you and He loves you; He wants to take you by the hand, even when you travel on steep and rugged paths, even when you fall and struggle to get up again and get back on track. He, the Lord, is there with you." In the second reading, St. Paul extolls the great love and mercy of God, shown to us in Christ, who died for us even while we were still sinners. By His own blood, Christ reconciled us with the Father, justified us, and saved us.

What can be our response to all of God's goodness to us? First of all, gratitude. We can make our own the grateful joy of God's people described in the Psalm: "Sing joyfully to the LORD, all you lands; serve the LORD with gladness; come before Him with joyful song." The enemy always tempts us to view God's Word to us as burdensome, and an unwelcome intrusion on our personal freedom. We need to firmly reject this lie and make a practice of thanking God for the amazing mercy and kindness He has shown us. Secondly, we see in the gospel that, as we know the great love and mercy of God, we are called to share it with others. We are given today the same commission which Jesus gave His Apostles: "Without cost you have received; without cost you are to give." Lord, help us to be faithful to this commission today, as a way of returning to your grateful love for the unfathomable love you have shown us.

"The harvest is abundant, but the labourers are few"

Matthew 9:37

- How do I express my gratitude for all of God's goodness to me?
- How has the devil tempted me into thinking that God's Word is burdensome?
- How am I proclaiming the kingdom of God by my actions of love and compassion for those around me?

SPIRITUAL DISCERNMENTS IN CHARISMS FOR EVANGELISATION BY FR HUNG PHAM, S.J.

Just as language evolves in its cultural and historical context, discerning God's voice requires us to learn His "language" - the "many and various ways" which God continues to speak to us today. This process of learning involves paying attention and listening carefully to how God has kindled unique gifts (charism) in each individual through the Holy Spirit.
